Lecture: Civilian Nuclear Emergencies Including Three Mile Island

Tuesday March 9th, 2021 at 7 PM

Please join the Cornwall Iron Associates for an exciting presentation about three significant civilian nuclear emergencies, especially one that occurred quite close to home at Three Mile Island. This webinar will feature a historical perspective about the emergencies, including what happened, what were the consequences, and what did we learn about nuclear safety from each of the emergencies.

The presenter will be Michael Weber, who volunteers as a guide and researcher at Cornwall Iron Furnace. Before returning to Cornwall in 2019, Mike served for 36 years as a scientist and manager at the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) and helped to lead the NRC during emergencies.

Mike Emery (CIF Administrator) will moderate a brief discussion at the end of the presentation.

This is an online lecture will utilize the Zoom platform.

Limited space available, registration required. To register please go to:
